INVITES YOU TO

The Literature and Human Rights Lecture Series

Through the Prism of Race, Gender & Class: My Work in Human Rights

GLEND A G. GRACE

Thursday, September 15, 2016 | 12:15–1:30 pm (free hour)
Rosenthal Library, President's Conference Room 2 (5th floor)

This is the fifth lecture in a series devoted to the relevance of the study of the humanities for the promotion of human rights in the academy, the community, and the government, both locally and globally.

Glenda G. Grace has served as General Counsel and Chief of Staff since August 2015. She joined the Queens College family as Assistant Vice President, Chief of Staff, and Deputy to the President in August 2014. As part of her current duties, Glenda provides legal advice and guidance to the college's academic and administrative departments, offices, and related entities. She is responsible for labor relations for faculty and other instructional/administrative staff under CUNY bylaws, policies, and collective bargaining agreements.

Glenda holds degrees from the University of Pennsylvania (BS in Economics, the Wharton School and BA in Psychology, School of Arts & Sciences) and Columbia University School of Law. She spent several years as a Visiting Assistant Professor at the Hofstra University School of Law and over ten years as Special Counsel with the New York State Capital Defender Office. Before that, Glenda was a litigation associate at Paul, Weiss, Rifkind, Wharton & Garrison.

Sponsored by the Comparative Literature Department.
