New Undergraduate Course Offering for Spring 2022 • Open to All Majors

Youth and Society: SEYS 150*

Spring 2022 • Tuesdays, 4:35–7:05 pm (hybrid course)

Youth and Society is a new three-credit hour General Education course that fulfills one requirement in the Individual and Society (IS) Flexible Core. The course is offered through QC's Department of Secondary Education and Youth Services and is open to all majors.

What you'll learn: We will critically investigate various historical and present-day expectations, roles, identities, and responsibilities of youth and adolescents. We will explore ideas about “youthhood” from diverse perspectives using sources such as literature; historical artifacts; film, music and other popular media; and interdisciplinary social science research. We will gain experiential knowledge and problem-solving skills by participating in a coordinated service-learning project in partnership with youth-focused organizations that serve the Queens community.

*Students need to register under the course's previous title, SEYS 290.3 Studies in Education, in CUNYFirst.
