Counselor Education

Counselor Education: The School Counseling (MSEd) and Mental Health Counseling (MS) programs prepare graduate students to serve as professional counselors in schools, and as mental health counselors in hospitals and community agencies. The MSEd in School Counseling leads to New York State certification in school counseling (K-12) and the MS in Mental Health Counseling leads to licensure as a mental health counselor in New York State. The bilingual specialization in school counseling offers a NYS Bilingual Extension.

School Psychology

School Psychology: Our program prepares future school psychologists to promote educationally and psychologically healthy environments for all children and youth through assessment, consultation, counseling, and intervention. The School Psychology program leads to an MS in Education and certification as a school psychologist. A bilingual specialization is offered leading to a NYS Bilingual Extension.
