Undergraduate Major in English Education Leading to Initial Certification
This program is designed for candidates who are English majors matriculated at Queens College and are interested in becoming initially certified as secondary English teachers in New York State. To declare the major, candidates must be admitted to the College, maintain a GPA of 3.0 or better in the content area (English), and have taken at least 5 courses in the major. A GPA of 3.0 must be maintained in secondary education courses (SEYS). Please consult an appointed English Department advisor for requirements for the English major and the assigned English Education faculty for the Education (SEYS) major. The total number of credits in education is 24. Please consult the English Department for major requirements. Please consult the college’s Bulletin for full information about this program. Students should plan for four semesters to complete this program, culminating with student teaching in the spring semester of the senior year. Please consult an advisor for planning your coursework.

Graduate Initial Certificate (Post Baccalaureate) Program:
This Program is intended for students who have a major or minor (36 credits) in English, with at least a 3.0 in the content area, who have an appropriate BA degree from a certified college or university, who have no educational coursework, and who would like to become initially certified in English. Upon initial certification, students typically have five years to get a master’s degree “functionally related to the teaching of English” for full professional (formerly, permanent) certification. At Queens College, this may be an MA in Literature (see the English Department web pages), or the MSEd in English Education (see below). The total number of education credits (in SEYS) is 21. Please consult the college’s Bulletin for full information about this program. This program can be completed in three semesters and culminates in student teaching in the spring semester. Please consult an advisor in planning your coursework.

Master of Science in Education (MSEd):
This program is for initially certified English teachers who need to complete a masters degree “functionally related to the teaching of English” for full professional (formerly, permanent) certification. The Program consists of 33 graduate credits, fifteen in English (ENGL) and 18 in Education (SEYS). Please consult the Bulletin as changes in the program may be in effect. Students interested in this program should receive advisement both in English and in Secondary Education. A minimum GPA of 3.0 is required to enter, and remain in, this Program. Please consult an advisor in planning your coursework.

Master of Arts in Teaching (MAT) in English Education
The Master of Arts in Teaching (MAT) in English Education is a 42-credit program of combined initial and professional certification that culminates in a master's degree. It is designed for candidates who have a Major in English, or a cohesive program of study in English of 36 credits (minimum) as approved by an English Education advisor. The program consists of two sections, 24 credits for initial certification, and 18 credits for professional certification in New York State (9-credits in SEYS English Education; 9-credits in ENGL). Candidates may take graduate courses in English concurrently with the 24-credits for initial certification, while the 9 credits in English Education are taken only after the candidate achieves initial certification. The course schedule is designed to accommodate part time enrollment and working schedules. Please consult the college’s Graduate Bulletin for full information about this program, and consult an advisor before applying and, once admitted, in planning your coursework.
Relationship of the Programs to the Education Unit’s Conceptual Framework

All English Education Programs are aligned with the Core Values of the Education Unit of “promoting Equity, Excellence, and Ethics in urban schools and communities.” More specifically, the Education Unit is committed to preparing teachers and educational professionals who:

- build inclusive communities that nurture and challenge all learners (Equity)
- demonstrate professionalism, scholarship, efficacy, and evidence-based and reflective practice (Excellence)
- value diversity, democracy, and social justice (Ethics)

Through the exploration of the English content as well as through the exploration of exemplary practices in curriculum design, adaptation, and instruction, these Programs also embed the Standards for Reading Professionals established jointly by the National Council for the Accreditation of Teacher Education (NCATE), and the National Council of Teachers of English (NCTE):

- Foundational Knowledge
- Instructional Strategies and Curriculum Materials
- Assessment, Diagnosis, and Evaluation
- The Creation of a Literate Environment
- Professional Development

Academic Standards and Professional Disposition

Candidates admitted to a Program in secondary English Education must maintain high academic standards. This means maintaining the required GPA stipulated for the specific Program. Professional disposition is used here in its broadest sense, to mean a candidate’s beliefs, values, behaviors and attitudes towards the teaching profession. All English Education candidates are expected to demonstrate high standards in their course work and field experiences. Additionally, they must show a positive professional disposition at program entry, during transition, and at graduation. Failure to maintain high standards and demonstrate a positive professional disposition will result in warning, probation, and appropriate disciplinary action. Students will be asked to sign a contract outlining these policies and steps prior to student teaching.
