What is a School Psychologist?
School Psychologists apply psychological principles in educational settings to improve the lives and learning of all students and to promote educationally and psychologically healthy environments for all children and youth. We are committed to training school psychologists who embrace principles of fairness, equity, and social justice in their personal and professional lives and who will provide exemplary, culturally responsive services to the diverse constituencies we are privileged to serve. School Psychologists work in public schools, school-based mental health settings, independent/private schools and educational settings.
