Cyberbullying and Online Harassment
You are not alone
Office of Compliance & Diversity Programs

Sharon Shulman, Esq.,
Chief Diversity Officer & Director, Interim
Title IX Coordinator
Sharon.Shulman@qc.cuny.edu

Nancy Schick, Esq.
Compliance & Diversity Training Specialist
Nancy.Schick@qc.cuny.edu

Office: 718-997-5888
Fax: 718-997-5770
Email: TitleIX@qc.cuny.edu
Socially distant, but not alone.

Discrimination and sexual harassment can occur electronically.

Don’t get too comfortable when you are studying or working from home.

Notify the Office of Compliance & Diversity Programs of any issues requiring intervention.

Resources:
Notice of Non-Discrimination
Office of Compliance & Diversity Programs
Online Harassment Examples

• Someone you once dated constantly messages you, asking where you are, who you are with, or what you are doing
• A classmate with a crush on you gets angry when you don’t respond right away
• A former friend leaves you messages that scare you or make you feel bad about yourself
• Someone accesses your social media or other online accounts without your permission
• An ex-partner posts embarrassing or sexual information, photos, or videos of you online without your permission
People Who Got Too Comfortable

• A video meeting attendee forgot to turn off her camera and went to the bathroom publicly
• Hackers joined unsecured video meetings solely to write racist and sexist comments in the Chat section or post offensive materials
• A non-CUNY student got up late for class and joined the video classroom before he puts clothes on
• Another classmate shared on social media a video capture the naked classmate, and it went viral worldwide
Protect yourself and others

1. Use anti-spyware software
2. Don’t give out your passwords
3. Block phone numbers that are used to harass you
4. Cover your device’s camera lens when not in use
5. Don’t accept friend requests on social media from people you don’t know and trust
6. Save evidence of harassment (e.g., voicemail, email, and text messages; screen captures; photos; videos; documents)
7. Don’t share embarrassing information, video, or photos
Talk to us

- Office of Compliance and Diversity Programs
- Student Counseling Center
Thank You!

Nancy Schick Esq., Compliance and Diversity Training Specialist

nancy.schick@qc.cuny.edu