Best Practices for Working with Student Research Assistants

Wednesday, November 19, 2025

12:30 p.m. - 1:30 p.m.

Presenter: Dr. Daniel Cumming

Postdoctoral Fellow, History Department and Melting Metropolis: Everyday Histories of Heat and Health in London, New York, and Paris Since 1945

Join us to learn about ways to effectively work with undergraduate students as research interns or assistants, based on a model developed by QC History faculty members Daniel Cumming and Kara Schlichting. We will discuss ways to connect undergraduate students to research projects and support their skills development as well as the different benefits that these efforts have for students and faculty alike.

Bring questions, stories, and your own strategies to share!
